Dear Parent/Carer,

You will have heard through the media various reports about the recent outbreak of Coronavirus and may be aware that some cases have been found in the UK. Whilst you should not be unduly worried about your child/ren catching Coronavirus, there is a UK wide public health campaign which promotes basic hygiene practices. Schools have been asked to support this campaign by sharing advice and copies of the Public Health England poster.

Accordingly, I attach the Public Health England guidance for parents/carers.

There is no reason why your child/ren should not attend school as normal.

If you are planning to travel to China during half term, please refer to the FCO's latest travel advice (the link is provided in the guidance document).

Students at Crossley Heath have recently been reminded about basic hygiene practices. We will, of course, be vigilant in school and will keep you informed should we receive any further advice or guidance from Public Health England. Please be assured that the overall risk of Coronavirus to the UK remains 'moderate' and there is no cause for undue worry.

If you have any concerns about Coronavirus or the health of your child/ren, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Yours sincerely

Nicola Holmes
